

THE MOONRISE CARTEL

FOLK ROCK FROM BLACK ROCK

The Moonrise Cartel is an original American folk-rock band blending folk, indie rock, and Americana — with a touch of gospel. The band features soaring harmonies, introspective lyrics, and a vintage sound profile balanced by a modern touch, making their music equal parts timeless and for the time.

Their rapidly growing fanbase (known as Cartel Members) now coins their sound:

BIO

Fueled by songwriter Al Pascarelli's deeply personal reflections on a lifelong battle with mental illness, alcoholism, and his eventual emergence from the darker shades of the human experience, this is a band with multiple gears — one that takes you on a powerful journey.

His voice is paired upfront with Stephanie Harrison, who wows with striking vocal prowess, effortlessly shifting between stunning power and heartbreakingly delicate delivery.

Multi-instrumentalist Jason Polise provides a sonic feast of electric guitar, saxophone, keys, and more — offering texture and range that elevate each performance.

It's all held together by the rock-solid rhythm section of Benj LeFevre (bass) and Steve Tobey (drums), grounding the band with groove, drive, and depth.
